

◆ Identification of printing materials

Counterfeiting of currency notes and others security documents such as passports, credit cards and share certificates is a simulation of the design and printing of the genuine documents using the same or similar type of paper. Examination of such documents can only be made feasible and effective through side-by-side comparing and aligning those documents suspected of being spurious with the corresponding genuine documents.

